ADVENTURES OF A PRINTER ON THE PACIFIC.—By the Cherokee we received a letter dated Honolulu, Sandwich Islands, Jan. 1, 1850, from an old friend and fellow printer, whose adventures have been so much out of the common order, that we extract a part of his letter for the amusement of our readers. The writer left New York in 1846, as a full private in Col. Stevenson's regiment. The writer left New York in 1846, as a full private in Col. Stevenson's regiment. After the wars were over, he remained in California, where he was employed by Gen. Vallejo as a carpenter at the time the gold mines were discovered. He of course took his chances at gold digging, but soon abandoned the business. When we last heard from him (previous to the letter received on Friday,) he was one of the publishers of the Cabifornian. He writes that he soon abandoned this speculation. He concludes his adventures for the present by being wrecked one day on Honolulu, and marrying the daughter of the chief of the village on the following Sunday. But let him speak for himself.

"The paper was slow pay in those times, so I sold out my interest and gained one or two thousand dolars, which I spent. Speculated a little, however, and did well—failed in some things, but made up on others.

"On the 9th of October last, in company with seven, I left San Francisco en a visit to the Beautiful Islands, intending afterwards to sail to China, make our way overland to Russia, where I have an uncle, and thence to England, where I could take passage for home. On the 28th, at noon, when we were within two leagues of the harbor of Honolulu, it came on to blow a gale. We stood off, and succeeded in worrying out the gale; but just as we were entering the mouth of the harbor, it came on to blow very hard from the Northwest, and in five minutes we were hard and fast on the shore. I rushed to my chest for my dimes, and had barely time to secure them, when the hull parted, keeled over, and filled. I secured a spar, and clung to it and the dust, like grim dearth to a deceased African. After being in the water about three quarters of an hour, lashed by the surf and bruised by the spar, I gained the shore. I kissed the earth where I first stopped, and determined never to leave it. Having 65 pounds of gold dust about my person, besides three or four hundred dollars in gold coin, I was completely exhausted, and turned in for the night (for night it began to be) under a coconant tree, where I slept soundly until 12 or 1 o'clock, when I awoke so stiff with cold, and sore from my bruises, that I could scarcely move. To my great joy, I discovered a fire about half a mile to the West. It proved to be a village of the natives, (Kanakas), who, on learning, by signs, my misfortune, stirred up the fire, gave me some boiled pork, bread fruit, yarns, and a variety of cating matter. After I had disposed of this, I turned in on some mats, where I slept soundly until sunrise, when I arose. After I had made my toilette, I was introduced to the chief of the village, offered me a house, some land, and his daughter in marriage, if I would live with his tribe and instruct them, a son. I accordingly, on my return to the village, informed the chief that I would accept his offer. He immediately introduced me to the fair one. Her name is Niaara, (Mary). She is of a light copper color, 14 years old, five feet four inches high, small hand and foot, black hair and eyes, and, above all, very affectionate. Her dress consisted of a faded blue satin skirt, coming no lower than the knee, moccasins and leggings, and a curtiously wrought bead headdress. She was by no means bashful, and none too modest. She sat on my knee and kissed me, and when I asked her if she would marry me, she said yes, without the means bashful, and none too modest. She sat on my knee and kissed me, and when I asked her if she would marry me, she said yes, without the slightest hesitation, and expressed a wish that the ceremony should take place on the following Sunday, saying that a missionary would be there on that day. This I agreed to, when she rewarded me with a kiss, and ran off to her father. The following day I visited the capital, and purchased the wedding dresses for my lady and myself, together with some presents for the bride, and on Sunday we twain were made one flesh. On Monday my father-in-law, at my request, set several men at work at getting out ecoca-nut logs to build my house, and in the course of ten days a very substantial dwelling, 40 feet front, 25 feet deep, and 25 feet high, was completed. This is the only building of the kind in the village, all the others being built of reeds and mud. The chief is very much pleased with it, and I hope that within a year the whole village will be of log houses. I have offered to furnish axes and other tools, and I think the natives will build themselves better houses. I am perfectly contented with my situation, and think that mine is a peculiar happy lot. After so long a struggle with the world—"peor as a rat"—sticking type for a living—to be cast ashore with a pocket full of rocks among friendly savages, in this lovely climate.

Illinois.—The wheat fields in Sagamon county, and in the counties of Logan. De Witt, and McLean, through which we have travelled within a few days past, present a finer and more promising appearance than we recollect ever to have witnessed at this season of the year. We have not seen an acre that seems to have suffered from either winter-kill or fly, and we trust that the hopes of the farmer may have a golden fruition next harvest. In the northern portion of the State the winter wheat has sustained some considerable injury on account of the open weather.—Springfeld (II). Organ. March 28.

The Austin (Texas) Gazette says that Capt. Cheatham, who accompanied the corps of engineers who recently left on a survey of the Colorado river. has returned and he makes a flattering representation of the condition and susceptibilities of the river. A side from the raft, he says he has never seen a better river. A report will, in a short time, he made to the proper department of government.

The Western Texan says that the crops in the vicinity of San Antonio are coming up finely. The corn was eight or ten inches high, and all it needed was rain. There had been no rain, with the exception of one shower, for about a month.

The Texas Ranger of the 21st uit says:—"We have had no rain for nearly two weeks, which has caused no little grumbling among the planters, and those ladies who take a pride in gardening. The weather has been delightfully warm, assuring us that spring had set in real earnest.

The Galveston (Texas) News of the 25th uit, has the following relative to sugar growing in Texas:—One of our best informed merchants and sugar planters estimates the sugar crop of Texas next year at 10 000 hogsbeads, and at 25,000 in five years after; while in ten years from this time, he believes the sugar crop of Texas next personable doubt. Mr. McCarrw said it would be more profitable to the married men to be employed at home than to be rambling about the streets, and that, at present, over fifty men were on the strike, which according to their constitution, would cost over $500 to support. He said the shoemakers were the most intelligent body of tradesmen in the city, and then was the time to show that they were so. He contrasted the state of the bosses with that of the working men, to show that the average amount of wages was no more than $5 a week. That was the time to make bosses give better prices. There were some bosses in the city who were able to give $10.000 for a sloop and cyster beds, all gained by the sweat and labor of the working man. Mr. Bouaus said they would allow no personal interest to prevent them going forward, and they should act with justice, and give the bosses twenty-four hours to consider of it.

The District Attorney then rose and proposed to enter into a legal argument to prove that, if this man was unnecessarily killed, it was murder. Mr. McKoon read some authorities, which distinctly laid down this proposition. The Judge oversaled the argument.

Mr. Brady then addressed the jury on behalf of the accused, and took the ground that this was a case of justifiable homicide. This position he maintained by a powerful train of reasoning and a strong array of legal authorities, in a brilliant speech of several hours duration.

The Judge then delivered his charge to the Jury, in which he carefully reviewed the whole of the critiques, and laid down the law of the case to the jury, who thereupon retired and after a short absence brought in a verdict of manulanghter in the fourth degree.

Professor Webster sent, through his friend, Professor Horsford, for the Rev. Dr. Alien to visit him. The latter thereupon called and was refused admittance by the jailor. He then applied to Sheriff Eveleth, who said that no person could be admitted to converse with the prisoner except the one spiritual counsollor relected by him. Dr. Albro was novertheless permitted, on Wednesday last, to see Professor Webster slone at the window of his cell; a three feet wall and three sets of iron gratings being between them. Professor W. was, we understand, much concerned because he was privileged to commune on spiritual affairs with only one individual, as it was his wish to see several on the subject of religious preparation for another life. He had no fixed religious views, and had never made personal religious a duty. He was not a materialist. He had faith in the Bible, and had read it through during his imprisonment. He was anxious on the question of the atonenent, and wanted much instruction. He asked Dr. A to visit his family; a request that has been compiled with. Prof. W. has selected the Rev. Dr. Putnam, the distinguished Unitarian elergyman of Rozbury as his spiritual adviser. Dr. P. is now the only divine who visits Prof. W. We learn that Prof. Webster selected Dr. Putnam because he did not wish those with whom he has been associated to visit him.
